

Changed the colors or made other significant changes in the markings of patrol cars.

Received 30 responses from agencies that had either changed the color of their cars [most went from white to black and white] or drastically changed graphic designs. None reported any problems either internally or with the public when the changes were made over time [generally, a 2 to 4 year period.] We have begun a change to black and whites, which will take 5 yrs. to fully implement. We have about 10 black and whites in service and have begun to change the graphics on our existing white cars so they are the same as on the new black and whites. All comments on the changes have been positive and no problems have been experienced with having different color and differently marked cars.
